BRITISH PARLIAMENT IS NOW DISSOLVED VOTE OCTOBER 29TH

LONDON, — Great Britian will elect a new parliament on October 29. The date for the general election was announced after King George held a privy council at Buckingham Palace at which he signed a proclamation dis solving parliament.

Decision to appeal to the country came after a series of dramatic moves in commons and in cabinet.

King George received Premier Mac Donald this morning and at that time consented to the dissolution of parliament.

The announcement of the late for the election, which will define the political complexion of the government which will succeed Great Britians' first Labor ministry, was made after Prime Minister MacDonald, coming this afternoon before the house of commons which last night defeated his government, to his request for the dissolution of parliament which will be prorouged tonight.

The premier also announced that the new parliament would meet a week or two after the date of the general election.

At six o'clock this evening, the house of commons was summoned to the house of lords to hear the King's speech, read by the lordchancellor, giving assent to the Irish boundary bill, which previously had been passed by the house of lords, and prorouging parliament.

There were the usual formalities. The King's speech announced that foreign relations were friendly. The speaker announced that royal assent had been given to the Irish bill.

Parliament then prorogued formally and will be dissolved by royal proclamation tonight.

SAFETY FIRST SHOULD PROVE TO BE FACTOR

In view of the fact that the season of fires and heating appliances is arriving, the following safety rule should prove tinely:—

Place stoves, furnaces and pipes far enough from walls and woodwork to avoid overheating.

Cover the nearest wooden surfaces with sheet asbestos, sheet iron or tin; if iron or tin is used leave an air space behind it.

Where stovepipes or heating pipes pass through walls, enclose the pipes in galvanized iron, doublewalled, ventilated thimbles at least six inches wid er than the diameter of the pipes.

Protect the floor beneath the stove with sheet metal, and have it extend forward at least twelve inches directly beneath the door of the ashpit.

Surround the base of the furnace with brick, stone or concrete.

Make sure that all pipes are free from rust, and that all joints and connections are sound and tight.

Fix a guard about the pipe in the attic so that nothing may be stored against it.

Never pour coal oil into a coal or wood stove, even when the fire is out

Never put ashes into the wooden boxes or barrels, have a strong metal can.

Study the drafts and dampers.

Do not let the stove pipes become red hot.

Keep stoves, furnaces, flues and chimneys clean.

Inspect the chimneys and flues to be sure that they are sound,

Do not dry wood in an oven.

Do not hang wet clothing too near to a stove.

Keep curtains away from stoves and pipes.

CUT OUT AND POST UP.

The Utah-Idaho Sugar Co. has practically decided to proceed with the establishment of a sugar factory in southern Alberta, in connection with the irrigated districts in the vicinity of Lethbridge. The first prize winner was Red Deer, with Sedgewick second.

OIL IS BEING AGAIN ENCOUNTERED AT B. P. HOLDINGS

In spite of the fact that for some peculiar reason the market in oil shares still shows a bearish tendency with regard to B. P. stock, renewed optimism is being evinced from the progress of operatons this week at the No. 3 well of that company. The hole is being drilled deeper and oil showings are again being brought to surface, and according to men well versed in the vagaries of the game of drilling for oil, the No. 3 well should yet prove itself a real producer.

The No. 5 well which has been located on L.S. 3 on 31-45-6 will soon be ready to commence drilling operations. The derrick is now completed, and the necessary machinery and equipment is being installed from the No. 4 well. The company will in all probability use the crude oil from No. 4 well for power purposes, despite the fact that this oil is of such quality as to be too good for use as fuel in its natural state without taking from it some of the lighter and more valuable lubricant properties it possesses.

An analysis of oil secured from No. 4 British Petroleums well at Wainwright shows that the quality is higher than what was taken from No. 2 well last year, according to a statement by Dr. J. A. Kelso, director of industrial laboratories at the University of Alberta,

The following is Dr Kelso's analysis:

Sample as received—

Water	.3.6
Mineral Matter (Clay, etc.)	.6.1
Oil	90.3
Analysis of Oil—
Specific Gravity	.9360
Gravity, Degrees Baume	15.4
Distillation—
Crude Gasoline	5.1
Crude Kerosine	30.0
Crude Lubricating Oil	47.8
Residue	16.8
Distillation loss	.3

Dr. Kelso's report on the samples taken from No. 2 Well on November 16 last year was as follows:

Sample as received—

Water	20.5
Mineral Matter (Clay, etc)	10.2
Oil	69.3
Analysis of Oil—
Specific Gravity	.985
Gravity, Degrees Baume	12.1
Distillation—
Crude Gasoline	2.2
Crude Kerosine	30.0
Crude Lubricating	39.0
Residue	28.8

The hugh oil pumps which are on the way here from Los Angeles, Calif are to be placed in the Nos. 2 and 4 wells upon arrival and it should not be long before it is well known exactly what production can be obtained from these two producers.

Mr Camsell, deputy minister of mines and minerals, Ottawa, was a visitor to our oil field on Tuesday when in addition to a tour of the several drilling sites of the working companies in the field, he was given a demonstration of "blow-off" at the Fabyan No. 1 Mr Camsell expressed both surprise and delight at the possibilite of the Wainwright oilfield.

Mr Newton W. Emmens, late superintendent of the Brit. Pet. Oil Co. left on Tuesday's train for Edmonton he having now severed his connection with this company.

After the ceremony a dainty luncheon was served at the Wainwright hotel, after which the happy pair motored to Irma where they are now in residence.

LOCAL RESIDENTS BEREAVED BY DEATH OF GRANDMOTHER

Mrs Esther Fletcher passed away on Sunday, Sept. 28, at her residence (near that of her daughter, Mrs R. McMillan) Kelwood Man. Strangling Oil Development In Canada

According to the Alberta Oil Journal Canada at the present moment is a pawn between two of the greatest oil companies on earth; fighting for the control of Canala and Mesopotamia The Dutch Shell seems to have got the whip handle in Mesopotamia, but the Standard seems to be getting the area is Canada, but the Dutch Shell through its invisible agents seems to have put across laws both provincial and dominion, under which even the Standard cannot afford to go ahead until the great surplus of oil coming out of California decreases and prices go up Enough to say the richest Jewish financers of London and New York are behind the Dutch Shell and the richest Christian financers of the world are behind Standard. With these ramifications the press is just about as bold as a lamb in front of a lion's mouth and the propaganda issued against the Canadian oil area is a thing to make any Canadian who knows the facts froth at the mouth,

BRITISH COMMISSION IN ALBERTA

The British Parliamentary Commission on child immigration, headed by Miss Margaret Bondfield, M.P., are now visiting Alberta, and held sessions in Edmonton this week, when the Provincial Government, and several organizations, presented their views to the commission on the question under investigation. The Alberta Government was represented by Hon Mrs Parlby.

HEAVY YIELDS ON NEW PROJECT

Som heavy yields of wheat are being obtained this season on the new United Irrigation project in the vicinity of Strathmore, two farmers reporting yields of 45 and 35 bushels respectively.

HEAD OF DOM. CHEMISTRY DEPT. AT MAPLE LEAF

Dr R. T. Elworthy, chemistry head of the mines branch of the Federal government at Ottawa, accompanied by his assistant Mr R. Offord, has spent some time this week at the No. 1 well of the Maple Leaf company, in an endeavor to determine the gas and gasoline values of this well, which is reported as blowing upwards of 2,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas every twenty four hours.

These gentlemen have also been conducting tests at the wells of the B.P. company, and their reports and samples have been forwarded to Ottawa where exhaustive tests of the possibilities from the products will be made.

According to reports to hand, all grades of lubricating oil, motor and electro motor oil, axle grease and special greases and lubricants are now being manufactured by Canadian Lubricants Limited at Edmonton from Alberta crude oil obtained from the wells of the Wainwright oilfields.

NEW COMPANY IN FIELD

The bunkhouses for the new British Wainwright Oil Co., are now completed and work is proceeding rapidly on the erection of the derrick for this concern on L.S. 4, on 22-45-6w4. The drilling machinery which arrived some time ago has been teamed out to the site, and as soon as possible this will be assembled and put to work. The company will use a standard rig, and have hopes of making a record with their first hole.

Work still continues at the site of the Wainwright Oil Producers' well close to town, and it is hoped to strike a good gas flow very shortly and use this product for the firing of the boiler and further development work. According to Driller William Bradley the indications are all to the good, and prospects are that this will be accomplished very soon.

From what we can gather the work at the site of the Western Consolidated well has been closed down, but whether this is for the winter, or only to await the arrival of machinery cannot be learned.

POPPIES NOW READY FOR ARMISTICE DAY

Vetcraft Poppies are the emblems by which thousands of Canadians will pay homage to the memory of our Living Dead next Armistice Day.

Made by your disabled Comrades in Vetcraft and Red Cross workshops in the principal cities across Canada, Vetcraft Poppies enable them to overcome vocational handicaps, and assist them in earning an ndependent Livelihood.

The distribution of Vetcraft Poppies provides a fitting means of creating funds to assist the needy and the dependent.

Commercial competition may offer poppy replicas at lower prices than the disabled veterans can make them, but the commercially-made poppy is only a tag, while the Vetcraft Poppy is a living emblem of these sacred sentiments associated with the commemoration of Armstice Day.

The Great War Veterans' Association of Canada is the only agency through which orders for Vetcraft Poppies may be placed. Local branch or other intending distributions should communicate with the Provincial Command, 310 Dominion Bank Bldg., Calgary, Alta.

Annual Harvest Thanksgiving At St. Thoms' Ch.

Large attendances marked both services at St Thomas' (Angl.) church on Sunday last, the occasion being the annual harvest thanksgiving of that denomination.

The services both morning and evening were conducted by the Rev. Mr Nash, of Manville, with whom the vicar, Rev. A. Love, had exchanged pulpits for the day.

The sermons at both gatherings were of a nature appropriate to the occasion while the special hymns and psalms used added greatly to the brightness of the services.

The church was prettily decorated by the ladies, grains, fruits, and flowers all being used in the scheme, while the Honor roll was specially attractive in its adornment of "Flanders" poppies.

COLONIZING THE LETHBRIDGE NORTHERN IRRIGATION DISTRICT

Definite steps towards a permanent policy of colonization of the surplus lands of the Lethbridge Northern Irrigation District are being taken by the Provincial Government according to an announcement made this week by Premier Greenfield. The Government which since its incepton, has been giving the new project such consideration as possible, and which has already done a certain amount of colonizing, realizes the necessity for a more aggressive and comprehensive policy to put the project on a successful basis. The Government recognizes the principal that successful colonization involves the necessity of reduction in area of present holdings, the present situation being that many of the present owners in the Lethbridge Northern district are overburdened with land, which makes overhead costs high. A survey is now being conducted of the entire district, to obtain information as to the holdings of present owners, the amount of land they would dispose of, their farm records and financial conditions. With this detailed information available, the Government will be in a position to settle upon a permanent policy of colonization. The Government has in mind that any policy dealing with the Lethbridge Northern should serve as an aid to and supplement in an orderly way a general policy for the re-establishment of the areas affected by drought. The Government is now driving in an immediate way with the removal of settlers from these areas but recognizes the need of a policy dealing with the whole situation in a more permanent way.

COAL STRIKE OF LONG DURATION IS PRACTICALLY OVER

CALGARY.— Miners' representatives agreed last Friday afternoon to terms of settlement of the coal strike to be put to the vote of the miners The agreement was signed by the operators and miners at 5 o'clock in the presence of James Murdock, Minister of Labor, and Premier Greenfield, of Alberta.

The agreement is that the miners will accept a reduction of $1.17 a day on contract work and 12½ p.c. reduction for day workers, which will be a reduction of about 90 cents a day for day work. There is to be a three-year contract which will be subject to six months' notice of termination by either side after March 31 next.

Eight thousand miners laid down their tools on March 31 last when their agreement with the Western Canada Coal Operators' Association terminated, and the operators demanded a reduction. Miners of District 18 which includes Alberta and eastern British Columbia, have been on strike six months and a half, with only a small amount of strike relief. Three conferences failed to effect an agreement, the last of which Hon. James Murdock, minister of labor, attended. The agreement was reached after the past two weeks had been spent in negotiation with the department of labor and Premier Greenfield. The strike has had a depressing effect on business.

"Captain Blood"

BUCCANEER.

"CAPTIAN BLOOD, BUCCANEER," a Vitagraph picture with J. Warren Kerrigan in the title role, is an adaptation of this thrilling novel.

"Our brief separation has been profitable," was captain Blood's greeting. "It's a busy mornin we've both had."

The tall ship that accompanied the Arabella was a Spanish vessel of twenty-six guns, the Santiago, from Puerto Rico, with a hundred and twenty thousand weight of cacao, forty thousand pieces of eight, and the value of ten thousand more in jewels. A rich capture of which two-fifths under the articles went to Levasseur and his crew. Of the money and jewels a division was made on the spot. The cacao it was agreed should be taken to Tortuga to be sold.

Then it was the turn of Levasseur, and black grew the brow of Captain Blood as the Frenchman's tale was unfolded. At the end he roundly expressed his disapproval.

But Levasseur answererd him, as he had answered Cahusac, that a ship was ship, and it was ships they needed. Perhaps because things had gone well with him that day, Blood ended by shrugging the matter aside. Thereupon Levasseur proposed that the Arabella and her prize should return to Tortuga there to unload the cacao and enlist the further adventures that could now be shipped. Levasseur meanwhile would effect certain necessary repairs, and then proceed south, await his admiral at Saltudos for their enterprise against Maracaybo.

To Levasseur's relief, Captain Blood not only agreed, but pronounced himself ready to set sail at once.

No sooner had the Arabella departed than Levasseur brought his ships work upon the erection of temporary quarters ashore for himself, his men, and his enforced guests during the careening and repairing of La Foudre.

At sunset that evening the wind freshened; it grew to a gale, and from that to such a hurricane that Levasseur was thankful to find himself ashore and his ships in safe shelter.

Chapter XV
THE RANSOM

In the glory of the following morning, sparkling and clear after the storm, with an invigorating, briny tang in the air from the saltponds on the south of the island, a curious scene was played on the beach of the Virgen Magra, at the foot of a ridge of bleached dunes, beside the spread of sail from which Levasseur had improvised a tent.

Enthroned upon an empty cask sat the French filibuster to transact important business: the business of making himself safe with the Govenor of Tortuga. Before him, guarded by two half-naked negroes, stood young M. Ogeron. Near at hand, and under guard, mademoiselle his sister sat hunched upon a hillock of sand Levasseurr addressed himself to M. d'Ogeron.

"I trust, monsieur," said he, with neck suavity, "that I have made myself quite clear. Your ransom is fixed at twenty thousand pieces of eight and you shall have liberty on parole to go to Tortuga to collect it. Meanwhile, your sister remains with me as a hostage."

"I refuse—utterly and absolutely do you understand? So do your worst and be damned for a filthy pirate," cried l'Ogeron.

"Remember your sister's honour is in pawn to me. Should you forget to return with the dowry, you will not consider it unreasonable that I forget to marry her." M. d'Ogeron observed the grey despair that had almost stamped the beauty from her face.

"No, you dog! A thousand times no! I beg that you will spare your self and your sister," said the Captain, "by being reasonable. I have said twenty thousand pieces of eight, twenty thousand pieces it shall be."

"And for what, if you please have you said twenty thousand pieces of eight?"

Startled, Levasseur and his officers looked up and around. On the crest of the dunes behind them, a sharp silhouette against the deep cobalt o the sky, they beheld a tall, lean figure scrupulously dressed in black with silver lace, a crimson ostrich plume curled about the board brim of his hat affording the only touch of colour. Under that hat was the tawny face of Captain Blood.

"Good morning, my Captain," said he, "it was last night's hurricane compelled our return. But who are these?"

Levasseur gnawed his lip, and changed colour. But he controlled himself to answer civilly:

"As you see, two prisoners."

He caught her—seized her in his arms

"Ah! Wasted ashore in last night's gale, eh?"

"Not so." Levasseur contained himself with difficulty before that irony. "They were in the Dutch brig."

"I don't remember that you mentioned them before."

"I did not. They are prisoners of my own—a personal matter. They are French."

"French!" Captain Blood's light eyes stabbed at Levasseur, then at the prisoners. He frowned thoughtfully upon Levasseur.

"Yesterday you surprised me by making war upon the friendly Dutch. But now it seem that not even your own countrymen are safe from you.

"Have I not said this is a matter personal to me?"

"Ah. And their names?"

The prisoner answered for him.

"I am Henri d'Ogeron, and this is my sister."

"D'Ogeron?" Captain Blood started. "Are you related by chance to my good friend the Govenor of Tortuga?"

"He is my father."

"The saints preserve us now! Are you quite mad, Levasseur?"

Captain Blood sat down on the cask that Levasseur had lately occupied, and looked up blandly. "I may inform you, to save time, that I heard the entire proposal that you made to this lady and this gentleman, and I'll also remind you that we sail under articles that admit no ambiguities. You have fixed their ransom at twenty thousand pieces of eight. That sum then belongs to your crews and mine in the proportions by the articles established But what is far more grave is that you have concealed from me this part of the prizes taken on your last cruise and for such an offense as that the articles provide certain penalties that are something severe in character."

"Ho, ho!" laughed Levasseur unpleasantly. Then added: "If you dislike my conduct we can dissolve the association."

"That is my intention But we'll dissolve it when and in the manner that I choose, and that will be as soon as you have satisfied the articles under which we sailed upon this cruise."

"What do you mean?"

"I'll accept the situation as I find it. Yourself you've fixed the ransom of this couple at twenty thousand pieces, and, as I gather, the lady is to be your perquisite. But why should she be your perquisite more than another's seeing that she belongs by the articles to all of us, as a prize of war? However, I'll not dispute her of you if you are prepared to buy her."

"Buy her?"

At the price you have set upon her.

"That is the ransom of the man. It is to be paid for him by the Govenor of Tortuga."

"No, no. Ye've set their value at twenty thousand pieces, and for that sum you may have the, since you desire it; but you'll pay for them the twenty thousand pieces that are ultimately to come to you as the ransom of one and the dowry of the other and that sum shall be divided among our crews."

That Captain Blood should dare oppose him with but a dozen followers whilst he had a hundred at his deck and call never entered the ruffian's mind. But he did not reckon on the cupidity of his own men. They saw twenty thousand pieces within their reach. Levasseur demanded time until he had captured sufficient booty. But Blood would have none of that Death lurked always in this desperate business and he added:

"Then let some one buy the prisoners who like."

"And who do you suppose has it if I have not?"

"I have," said Captain Blood.

"You have!" Levasseur's mouth fell open. "You ... you want the girl

Captain Blood drew forth a small bag, twenty pearls poured into his hand, and Cahusac appraised them as worth the ransom. Levasseur in his anger sprang at Cahusac, and a blow scattered the pearls in the sand. The men dived for them.

Levasseur, his hand on his sword, his face a white mask of rage, confronted Captain Blood.

"You do not take her while I live!" he cried.

"Then I'll take her when you're dead," said Captain Blood, and this own blade flashed i the sunlight.

It was soon over. When, with both lungs transfixed, he lay prone on the white sand, coughing out his rascally

"You do not take her while I live," he cried

life, Captain Blood looked calmly at Cahusac across the body.

"I think that cancels the articles between us," he said.

With soulless, cynical eyes Cahusac and his mates considered the twitching body of their recent leader. Captain Blood had brought them to find Levasseure guilty of the one offense they deemed unpardonable, the crime of approvriating to himself something which might be converted into gold and shared amongst them all. Whilst still they hesitated Blood added some thing to quicken their decision.

"If you will come to our anchorage, you shall receive at once your share of the booty of the Santiago, that you may dispose of it as you please."

They crossed the island, the two prisoners accompanying them, and later that day, the division made, they would have parted company but that Cahusac, at the instances of the men who had elected him Levasseur's successor, offered Captain Blood anew the services of that French contingent

"If you will sail with me again," the Captain answered him, "you may do so on the condition that you make your peace with the Dutch and restore the brig and her cargo."

The condition was accepted, and Captain Blood went off to find his guests, the children of the Governor of Tortuga.

Mademoiselle d'Ogeron and her brother—the latter now relieved of his bonds—sat in the great cabin of the Arabella, whither they had been conducted. He doffed his feathered hat, and came forward to the table.

"Mademoiselle," said he in his vile but fluent French, "I beg you to dismiss fears. Aboard this ship you shall be treated with all honor. So soon as we are in case to put to sea again, we steer a course for Tortuga to take you home to your father. And pray do not consider that I have bought you. Count it, if you please, a friendly loan to be repaid entirely at your convenience."

Mademoiselle stared at him in unbelief.

"Oh, you are noble!"

Captain Blood sighed. For the whole truth, which he withheld from Mademoiselle d'Ogeron, was that in venturing his life to save her, he had been driven by the thought that the deed must be pleasing in the eyes of Miss Bishop could she but witness it.

That affair of Mademoiselle d'Ogeron bore as its natural fruit an improvement in the already cordial relations between Captain Blood and the Govenor of Tortuga. It was not difficult then for Captain Blood to recruit able crews, and he might have increased the number of his ships as well, but he derided to hold to the three vessels which were his—the Arabella, the La Foudre, and the Santiago, which he had rechristened the Elizabeth.

It was with this fleet that he carried out the enterprise against Maracaybo an enterprise in which almost turned the tide against him and delivered him and his men over to the tender mercies of his implacable enemy, Don Miguel de Espinosa y Valdez, the Admiral of Spain. Captain Blood had landed at Marracaybo and had found the town empty. Too soon he learned of the trap. Espinosa had put into the narrow neck of the bay with his ships and had bottled the buccaneer in the bay. A sloop, captured by Captain Blood, was loaded with combustibles and powder and was sailed directly at the Spaniard until the grapnels held the two like a vice. Then it was set a flame. The Admiral's flagship burst into flames and fine seamanship and hard fighting with his three ships made Captain Blood master of Maracaybo Bay. But, when the Spaniards turned tail for shore and he gave chase, the fort which guarded the bay and which had seemed deserted poured down a raking fire upon him and drove him in mortification and despair to take refuge in the town. The Spaniards secured themselves in the fort.

With the devil's luck and clear headed thinking Captain Blood feinted with preparations for a land attack after he had managed to acquire a large ransom in gold from the Govenor of Maracaybo, and, opening a broadside put the fort in flames. Captain Blood sailed for Tortuga. Don Miguel was left to chew the bitter cud of lost opportunity.

Chapter XVI
THE MILAGROSA

In Tortuga, during the months he spent there refitting the three ships he had captured from the fleet that had gone out to destrov him, he found himself almost an object of worship in the eyes of the wild Brethren of the Coast, all of whom now clamored for the honor of serving under him. It placed him in the rare position of being able to pick and choose the crews for his augmented fleet, and he chose fastidiously. When next he sailed away it was with a fleet of fine ships in which went something over a thous and men. Thus you behold him not merely famous, but really foridable. Three captured Spanish vessels he had renamed with a certain scholarly humor the Clotho, Lachesis, and Atropos, a grimly jocular manner of conveying to the world that he made them the arbiters of the fate of any Spaniards he should henceforth encounter upon the seas.

And meanwhile the Spanish Ad-

Here and There

Russia has more illiterates, and at the same time, more bookshops than any other country in Europe.

The largest consignment of silk from the Orient for many months, consisting of 5,500 bales, valued at $9,000,000, formed part of the cargo of the "Empress of Russia" recently.

A shipment of silk from China, consisting of ten carloads, valued at two million dollars, went forward from Vancouver to New York under special guard over the Canadian Pacific lines recently.

The first of a series of six new seaplanes being constructed for the Canadian Government has just been delivered. The new planes are to be used in forest patrol for the prevention of destruction by fire.

Following the disastrous earthquakes and fires which devastated large areas in Japan, the Canadian Pacific liners "Empress of Canada" and "Empress of Australia" were thrown open to the accommodation of thousands of refugees, while the officers and men of the vessels did splendid work in organizing and assisting rescue parties.

The rapid increase in the export butter trade of Saskatchewan during the past year or two, has been the outstanding feature of the Provincial dairy industry. Recently the Saskatchewan Co-operative Creameries made a shipment of 25,000 lbs. of butter to China.

For almost two decades the major portion of the world's supply of cobalt has been derived from the silver-cobalt-nickel arsenides of the Cobalt district, according to figures compiled by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The cobalt production of Canada in 1922 was 569,960 pounds, which at $3.25 a pound, would be worth $1,852,370.

Canada's trade within the Empire is increasing. For the twelve months ended July, Canada exported to other parts of the Empire goods amounting to $453,437,899. This is in comparison with $354,992,074, the figure for the corresponding twelve months previous. Imports from British Empire countries during the two twelve months' periods were: Ended July, 1923, $195,811,190; ended July, 1922, $153,185,581.

A wheat crop of 382,514,000 bushels is forecasted in a report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. The report is based upon the condition of crops at the end of July, and indicates that the Prairie Provinces will produce 357,296,000 bushels of wheat if weather conditions continue favorable. Manitoba, it is expected, will have a total wheat yield of 44,468,000 bushels; Saskatchewan 211,061,000; and Alberta 101,776,000 bushels. Alberta is the only province to show an increased yield as compared with 1922.

A party of five journalists, representing the leading newspapers of Switzerland, who recently arrived at Quebec, are the guests in Canada of E. W. Beatty, President of the Canadian Pacific Railway. They will tour the Dominion in the interests of Swiss colonization. Stops will be made at different points where Swiss people are farming, and opportunity will be given to members of the party to converse with them and get first hand knowledge as to the desirability of Canada as a place for Swiss colonists.

In a letter on "Canada and Land Settlement," published by the Morning Post, Sir Geo. McLaren Brown, European manager of the Canadian Pacific Railway, says that the agricultural salvation of Western Canada lies in mixed farming, which calls for smaller and more numerous agricultural holdings than wheat growing does, and results in closer settlement and better communication. The bigger and more densely settled the rural population, the more social amenities there are and greater advantages generally, he says.

PAYING "CASH"

Sooner or later, at some stage or other, all our efforts have to be placed alongside the cold hard rule of "cash" and be measured thereby.

"Cash" though such a frequently used measure stick is most fortunately and happily not the final adjudicator of the merit or otherwise of the worth of human effort.

Our daily labors, no matter how useful or useless to the community at large, have to be measured by the "cash" they render to ourselves. It is no small wonder that we lose sight of the 'ethical" and "moral" value or our efforts, and descend to that point of view most graphically expressed in the phrase "Business is Business".

The "man in the field" is effected by this just as the "man in the street" for he has to regulate his action by the probable return he will get for his labor, and too often must he disregard all effort which might ultimately prove more profitable to society at large as well as to himself individually by reason of his necessity for an immediate "cash" return.

We can't all afford to be idealists like Burbank who has spent his life developing plant culture to the general profit of society, being a virtual pauper at the end of his days and his valuable land on which untold potential wealth to society was being developed sold for cemetery purposes. What a satire on modern civilization such a circumstance is!

History has often demonstrated that those who make the largest contributions to the welfare of society receive little or no "cash" return for their efforts; and often have suffered seriously from the hands of hostile society even in some cases, forfeiting life itself. They have been the truly successful men in the light of ultimate history because they measured up to a greater measure than that of cold "ctsh".

Our sympathies and finer feelings have also to be placed very frequently along side of the "cash" measure stick. So intricate has our social system become that in theh great majority of instances personal direct effort is impossible. and we have to supplant individual effort by its token—that is to say "cash".

The only large class of humanity who still decline to measure the worth of their efforts by the "cash" rule is without doubt the women who are our wives and mothers. By them is shown the purest affections of human love, and by them are more strongly exercised the spiritual forces of faith, hope. and labor.

Pause a moment and reflect how great would be the loss to all of us men and children oi our women adopted a strictly "cash" standard as the measure of the efforts on our behalf. It would necessitate the destruction of the vast majority of our homes, for we could not pay our women. It would mean that every child would have to go without care and protection for they could not pay mother. It would mean the total destruction of civilization which in a material and spiritual manner s based upon our homes, and not our "cash".

Three-quarters of the present evils of society will be remedied when we learn to use "cash" as a tool. rathr than as somewhat like "fire" is a "goid servant but a bad master".

Count Kayabama, of Japan in his own language expresses very graphically the force of the "moral" measure stick when he says: "Here in Japan we have something that is very difficult to explain to a foregner. It is the great force at work to control public opinion and public expression. It would probably find no counterpart in any other country, because it is an outgrowth a natural result of the social structure of Japan. When it comes to a pinch we are one great family. Partly it is the government, partly the disciplining influence of army and navy training on successive generation which practically every citizen shares, and partly it is the combined will of the men in charge of our large enterprizes.

LIFE'S LITANY

A little hope, a little dream,
A little prayer, the heart to cheer
A little joy to shed its gleam
Upon a pathway, else too drear—
So life is sweet to me!

A little doubt, a little pain,
So that my soul may know the peace
Or happiness, when once again
It wins a way to sweet release—
So life is sweet to me!

A little skill in all I do,
A little praise, lest labor pall;
A little strength to carry through
And someone's love to crown it all—
So life is sweet to me!

BULLETIN FROM PROVINCIAL GOVT.

Prince's First Sale

The first annual auction sale of pur bred livestock on the EP. ranch at Pekisko, Alberta, was held on Wednesday October 1st with the Royal owner of the ranch, H.R.H the Prince of Wales, in personal attendance. The occassion was also the annual picnic of the Alberta Shorthorn Breeders' Association, and the prince threw open the ranch to the visiting public for the entire day. Nearly 2,000 persons attended the event. The stock offered for sale included some top notch male shorthorn stock, as well as Hampshire and Shrophire sheep. The top price for shorthorn bull was paid by Col. Parnee, of Oklahoma, U.S.A. who bid in Princeton Enthusiast at $775. Other purchasers of stock included P. Burns A. E. Cross, and other well-known Alberta stock men. The average for the 14 bulls sold was $300, and the top price paid for females was $4.50, seven being offered altogether. The highest figure in the sheep sale was $140 for a Shrop ram. Prominent at the sale were Hon. Geo. Hoadley, Minister of Agriculture for Alberta, and officials of his Department, Hon. D. Marshall, President, Shorthorn Breeder's Association of Canada, W. T. McDonald, Livestock Commissioner of B.C., F. H. Auld, Deputy Minister of Agriculture for Saskatchewan, and others. The auctioneer was J. W. Durno of Calgary. The prince for the first time gave permission for cameramen to be present on the ranch during his visit, and he also received the newspaper writers who were at the sale. Following the sale the prince left with his suite for Jasper Park, west of Edmonton, afterwards proceeding to Vancouver.

Invention Works Well

The inventio of a new weed cleaning machine to be attached to separators, which was brought out by W. J. Stephen, Field Crops Commissioner of the Province, and is being sponsored by the Provincial Department of Agriculture, has had several tests recently which have proved extremely satisfactory. Several of the attachments are now being made for use in in the threshing operations at various points this fall. The attachment works on the principal of a fanning mill and has several seives which may be changed according to the kind of grain being threshed, and the class of weeds which might be encountered. The device cleans the grain very throughly of weeds.

Alberta University Opens

Lectures at Alberta University for the fall term began the past week, and registrations continued throughout the week. The attendance is expected to be fully as large as last year, which was a record when the registration to talled 1341.

Wool Shipments

Alberta's wool shipments from the various wool shipping centres has been upwards of one million pounds thus far this year.

Livestock Exhibits

Formation of a Livestock Board for the Province which would be in a position to speak and act jointly for all livestock associations of the province was favored at a meeting of representatives of the livestock associations in Calgary last week. The formation of such a joint board was requested by Hon. Geo. Hoadley, Minister of Agriculture, last spring. It was decided at the meeting in Calgary to send representatives to meet the livestock associations of Northern Alberta at Edmonton.

It had been hoped that the proposed joint board would have been organized in sufficient time to appoint the committee to select the livestock to go from Alberta to the Royal Stock Calgary meeting, however, decided that the organization of the joint board would take too long, and asked the Department of Agriculture to appoint the committee

The committee was named by the Show at Toronto and the International at Chicago, and to advise the Department of Agriculture on matters in connection with these exhibits. The Minister of Agriculture on Saturday, and is composed of Livestock Commissioner, S. G. Carlyle, W. J. Stark, representing the northern livestock associations, and Chas. Yule, representing the southern associations.

The committee will make the selection of livestock this coming week Those wishing to send stock to the Royal and International shows should advise the Department immediately. The freight on the exhibits will be paid jointly by the Provincial Department and the Dominion Livestock Branch.

PREPARING THE SURPLUS COCKERELS FOR THE MARKET

(Experimental Farm Note)

Repeated experiments conducted by the Poultry Division of the Dominion Experimental Farms, both at Ottawa and at the branch Farms throughout Canada, have demonstrated the fact that it is far more profitable to fatten cockerels before putting them on the market, than to sell them direct from range. The additional profit obtained thereby, is due not only to the increase in the weight but more particularly to the improved quality of the flesh, which always commands a higher price.

Crate fattening involves a little more time and trouble than does fattening in pens or yards, but has proven to be the more satisfactory and gives greater returns. An experiment conducted at the Experimental Farm Ottawa. in 1921, showed that the average profit (over cost of feed) realized on birds fattened in crates was almost fifty per cent greater than on those fattened in yards.

No birds showing signs of constitutional weakness should be put in the fattening crates, as they will be unable to stand the confinement and forced feeding. Cockerels of the general purpose breeds fatten best in crates when they weigh from four to five pounds. Before being placed in the crates they should be thoroughly treated for lice, and if necessary treated again, durring the fattening deriod.

Experiments have also shown that a home-mixed fattening mash gives equally good results as a commercial mash and produces a cheaper gain. Such a mash may well be composed of equal parts by weight, of corn meal, feed flour and middlings, or equal parts of feed flour, cornmeal, barley meal and buck wheat meal. In fact a mixture of almost any finely ground grain will prove satisfactory. The mash should be mixed with buttermilk, but if this is not possible, skim-milk may be used, and 5 to 10 per cent tankage added to the mash ingredients. The mixture should be about the consistency of porridge so that it can be poured from a pail. It is preferable to mix one feed ahead, so that it will be a little sour when fed. As a general rule two feeds per day are sufficient, and no more should be given than the birds can clear up in twenty minutes. All surplus feed should be removed after each feeding and the troughs kept thoroughly clean.

More detailed information on this subject, including a complete description of fattening crates, is contained in Exhibition Circular No. 70 "Crate Feeding" which can be obtained free of charge from the Publications Branch, Dept. of Agriculture, Ottawa.

The Wainwright Star
(Adapted From "The Yorkton Ent erprise")

Every meeting, whether of the public, or of a society, club, or association, should be advertised in the local paper.

By advertising the meeting, those interested have an opportunity of knowing about the affair beforehand, and can plan accordingly.

The chances of getting a good attendance at these functions are increased by newspaper advertising; because the paper carries the message to its readers, while other forms of advertising, such as posters, handbills, etc, require the reader to come to them, and they cost more.

Teas, Sales, Dances, Concerts, etc., can all be given publicity through the columns of the local paper.

Implements, Feed, Seed Grain, Stock, Houses for sale or rent, all these can be advertised cheaply and effectively through "The Star".

The advertisement will be read by everyone in a wide district, and the result from it will thereby be increased.

Advertising in the local news column is 10c per line per issue.

What the World Is Doing

(As Seen by Popular Mechanics Magazine)

Garage Doors That Roll Overhead Save Space and Repair Bills

Garage, factory and warehouse doors that roll up overhead are being manufactured to replace the ordinary hinged or sliding door. They are constructed in panels, somewhat like the roll top of an office desk, and slide on flanged rollers and steel tracks. When the door is opened, it is inside where it cannot be damaged by the weather and cannot blow shut. It is counterbalanced by strong steel springs, locks automatically when closed, fits flush with the floor and is not hard to install. As it does not project beyond the building, it is convenient where the garage or other structure is erected in limited space.

Spark-Plug Cleaner

Stranded copper wire makes a spark-plug cleaner that can be used without taking the plug apart and is harmless to the porcelain. It will not clean the insulator as well as when the plug is taken apart and polished with steel wool, but will serve in an emergency. The best results are obtained when a length of lamp-cord is doubled over and both ends used. The insulation of the wire should not be removed for more than ½ in. as it stiffens the end of the wire if left on.

Paint for Coils and Panels and Coils

An insulating paint, which has been found serviceable for painting cardboard panels and coils in radio work, can be made by anyone at practically no cost. A pint of denatured alcohol is obtained, and an old phonograph record, which is broken up into many small pieces, is dropped into the alcohol. This can be done best in a fruit jar. The cap is screwed down tightly and the mixture allowed to stand for a few days until the pieces of record have been thoroughly dissolved. The mixture is stirred well before it is used and is applied with a brush. The work must be done fast, as the paint dries rapidly, leaving a black film on the surface. Two coats are sufficient for any material. The application stiffens the cardboard considerably and produces a fine dull finish. One pint of the mixture will cover from 15 to 20 sq. ft., and sometimes more.

Rifle Range Target in Golf Net Improves Player's Accuracy

To teach accuracy in driving, a steel golf-practice net has been installed in a Los Angeles club. It has the bull's-eye and circles of a rifle-range target at which the ball is driven. "Slicing" or "pulling" is accurately shown, and distance also may be gauged by the spot the sphere strikes. Being of metal, the net will withstand much drives.

Novel Roof Economizes Lumber

Temporary buildings can be roofed much more quickly and with less lumber if the roofing boards are laid across the rafters diagonally, as shown in the illustration. Each board overlaps the one below it in order to shed rain, making the roof practically waterproof. Roofs made in this way have been found quite satisfactory.

¶Three comets are due to approach near the earth in 1924, astronomers at the naval observatory have announced. They are the Encke and Temple, which will appear in November, and the Tuttle, coming in December. Special preparations are to be made to study them, it is said, as scientists have no means of determining what may have happened to them since they passed out of sight.

Your Account Book and Your Bank Book

If your account shows a profit, that profit should be recorded in your bank book as entries of deposits or else it is likely to dwindle away.

It is a good plan to use the two books together. Estimate your profits in one and then transfer them to the other where they will grow even greater by the systematic addition of interest. Open a Savings Account with us at our nearest branch.

miral Don Miguel de Espinosa went raging up and down the Carribbean seeking his enemy, and in the meantime, as an horsd'oeuvre to his vindictive appetite, he fell upon any ship of England or of France that loomed above his horizon. This illustrious seacaptain and great gentleman of Castile had lost his head. And so reckless of the fact that Captain Blood was now in vastly superior strength, the Spaniard sought him up and down the trackless seas. But for a whole year he sought him vainly. The circumstances in which eventually they met are very curious.

On the 15th September of the year 1688—a memorable year in the annals of England—three ships were afloat upon the Carribbean which in their coming conunctjons were to work out the fortunes of several persons. The first of these was Captain Blood's flag ship the Arabella, which had been separated from the bucaneer fleet in a hurricane off the Lesser Antilles. She was beating up for the Windward Passage homing for Tortuga, the great natural rendezvous of the dispersed vessels. The second ship was the great Spanish galleon, the Milagrosa, which, accompanied by the smaller frigate Hidalga, lurked off the Caymites, to the north of the long peninsula that thrusts out from the southwest corner of Hispaniola. Aboard the Milagrosa sailed the vindictive Don Miguel. The third and last of these ships was an English man-of-war, the Royal Mary, which was at anchor in the French port of St. Nicholas on the northwest coast of Hispaniola. She was on her way from Plymouth to Jamaica, and carried on board a very distinguished passenger in the person of Lord Julian Wade, who came charged by his kinsman, my Lord Shnderland, with a mission of some consequence and delicacy, directly arising out of that vexatious correspondence between England and Spain.

If a man thinks that he knows it all it always hurts when he happens to learn the truth.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

Advertisement in a country newspaper:—

"Wanted: Ten thousand loathsome bugs, by a tenant who agreed to leave premises in the same condition in which he found them."

The solicitor was getting tired of modern methods. A stranger called on him one day and began in the usual fashion. "I want to know if I have grounds for divorce.."

"Are you married?" acked the solicitor.

"Of course I am! Why..?"

"Then you have."

Milligan: "If I be afther lavin' security equal to what what I take away, will yez trust me till nixt wake?"

A tremendously fat man stepped on a piece of orange peel, he floundered about, and finally fell into the road.

He was arrested for giving a performance without a license.

Pat: "That kas a foine sintiment Casey got off at the banquet last night."

Mike: "What was it?"

"He said the swatest mimories in loife are the riecollections of things forgotten!"

First Hobo: "I see by this 'ere paper it says the worker is ruining the countdy."

Second Hobo: "Didn't I always tell yer work wos no good"

"Jimmy likes only girls with bright red hair!"

"That's what I've heard. I'm dyeing to make him like me."

Mrs. Snappy: "I made the dentist extract that tooth to-day."

Snappy: "Happy tooth!"

Mrs. Snappy: "What do you mean?"

"It is now out of reach of your tongue."

Prospective Employer: "So you get a year off for good behaviour?"

Applicant: "Yes, sir. you see I didn't steal a thing while I was in goal."

CHEERFULNESS

I sometimes think the world's a place
All blue and white and gold;
I meet with tdo much happiness
For one small heart to hold.

Oh! then my only care is this:
To share with fellow-man my bliss
I sometimes think the world's a place
To weep about and shun.

I hate to see the ugly clouds
Blot out the splendid sun!
But, if he always shone—why there!
What man on earth could stand the glare! M. E. Grey

Here and There

A new record has been established by the Department of Marine and Fisheries in the number of white fish eggs collected for hatchery purposes in the Great Lakes and the Lake of the Woods. A total of 464,560,000 eggs were obtained, which exceeds all previous collections in the province of Ontario.

A new deposit of soapstone has been discovered on Trap Lake, a small lake south of Wabigoon Lake, in northwestern Ontario. The quality of the stone has been reported as excellent for various industrial uses, and practical trials are under way. Water transportation is available direct from the deposits to Wabigoon and Dryden, on the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

It is announced by the Canadian Pacific Railway that two free scholarships covering four years' tuition in architecture, chemical, civil, mechanical or electrical engineering at McGill University, are offered, subject to competitive examinations, to apprentices and other employees enrolled on the permanent staff of the company and under 21 years of age, and to minor sons of employees.

Canada's fisheries' production during 1923 is estimated to be worth $40,000,000. At the beginning of the year it was not thought that anything like this mark would be reached, for the Fordney tariff had cut deeply into exports to the United States. But as the year wore on the demand and prices generally improved, thus giving fishermen along the Atlantic coast especially a much better market.

Approximately $5,000,000 will be spent by the Dominion Coal Company to open up a new mine and colliery at Lingan, Nova Scotia, and construction of a branch line of railway to the new site has already been started. The new colliery will be equipped with every modern device, and a model town will be planned in its vicinity. It will have a capacity of some 2,000 tons daily.

The tenth annual Ski Tournament will be held at Revelstoke, February 5th and 6th, in connection with which ski-joring, tobogganing, snowshoeing, skating, etc., will be featured An endeavor is being made to secure the attendance of Uno Hilstrom, Sweden's champion ski-jumper, as well as other famous ski-jumpers from both Canada and the United States.

Canada in 1923 produced more coal, lead, cobalt and asbestos than during any other year since mining records have been kept. The output of coal was in the neighborhood of 17,300,000 tons, or 635,000 tons better than the best previous record, and 2,000,000 tons over that in 1922. The output of copper, nickel, cement and asbestos was also much above that for the preceding years. Gold production was down somewhat, but this was due more to a power shortage than anything else.

As a result of efforts on the part of Hon. J. A. Robb, Minister of Immigration and Colonization, a 20 per cent. preference rate on Atlantic passages for all British immigrants settling in Canada has been arranged to come into effect on March 1 and continue until the end of the main immigration season at the end of November. It will apply only to British immigrants coming direct to Canada from the British Isles, and will affect all lines coming to Canadian Atlantic ports.

Three delightful cruises have been awarded to agents of the Canadian Pacific Railway for services rendered the company during the past year. One of them, J. J. Forster, general agent at Vancouver, will sail on a round-the-world cruise on the "Empress of Canada"; W. C. Casey, general agent at Winnipeg, will spend sixty-eight days cruising the Mediterranean on the "Empress of Scotland," while D. R. Kennedy, general agent at Buffalo, will enjoy a twenty-nine-day cruise in the West Indies on the "Empress of Britain." The trips were awarded by the company in recognition of last year's work in connection with cruise bookings.
